

① The Regina Coeli Building

The Regina Coeli Building, overlooking the Shenandoah River, is the main administrative office building on campus. It contains the President's Office, Development, Admissions, Academic Affairs, Financial Aid, and the Registrar, as well as the Chester-Belloc lounge.

② The Chapel of Christ the King

Standing on the campus' highest point, the Chapel of Christ the King is at the very heart of life at the College. The Chapel, traditional in aesthetic character, bears the marks of churches throughout the country which donated items for its fitting up.

③ St. Lawrence Commons

Built in 1993, the St. Lawrence Commons is the College's multi-purpose building. Its lower level contains several classrooms and the student bookstore. Students dine in the first-floor refectory, which is also the site of many social, educational, and cultural activities such as dances, lectures, and concerts.

④ Blessed Margaret of Castello Hall

Blessed Margaret Hall is a dormitory for junior and senior women.

⑤ St. Edmund Campion Hall

St. Edmund Campion Hall is the largest women's dorm housing 75 women. Built in 1983, it was the first building project to take place on Christendom's campus.

⑥ St. Catherine of Siena Hall

The newest of the women's dorms houses 68 women.

⑦ Madonna Hall

Affectionately known by its inhabitants as the "Quad" and once the residential hall for the entire College, Madonna Hall now houses faculty offices.

⑧ St. Joseph Hall

Built in 1989, St. Joseph's houses 27 young men.

⑨ St. Benedict Hall

Built in 1997, St. Benedict Hall is the newest of the men's dormitories. It houses 60 men and is situated between the other two male dormitories.

⑩ St. Francis Hall

St. Francis was built in 1995 thanks to a significant donation. It faces St. Joseph Hall and houses 32 young men.

⑪ St. Thomas Aquinas Hall

This humble building served in the exalted role of College Chapel until the new Chapel was completed in 1995. Since then, it has been converted to a lecture hall.

⑫ Pope John Paul II Student Center

Officially dedicated on April 2, 2006, the one-year anniversary of the death of Pope John Paul II, the Student Center is a welcome addition to the College's vibrant campus. In addition to containing the Chaplain and Student Life offices, the JPII Center is where students spend time in rest and relaxation, taking advantage of the large game room and the beautifully designed Café, replete with homemade muffins, cookies, sweets, and a variety of coffee drinks and sodas.

⑬ St. Louis Crusader Memorial Gymnasium

The 20,000 square foot gymnasium features a regulation-size basketball and volleyball court (adaptable for half-court games); two racquetball/handball courts; weight/exercise rooms; locker rooms; a student lounge; a recreation room; and the Athletic Affairs office.

⑭ St. John the Evangelist Library

Completed during the fall of 2004, the 40,000 sq. ft. St. John the Evangelist Library is the hub of the educational resources for Christendom College. The Library has a high quality collection of over 60,000 volumes which is specifically designed to support the Catholic curriculum of the College's undergraduate and graduate programs, as well as faculty research.
